Preface

Constant price Input-Output Tables for the years 1961 to 1971 were published in The Input-Output Structure of the Canadian Economy in Constant 1961 Prices, 1961-71 (Catalogue 15-507) in December 1977. The current price Input-Output Tables have now been completed to 1974, along with some revisions for the years 1961 to 1971 and are published in The Input-Output Structure of the Canadian Economy, 1961-74 (Catalogue 15-508). The report at hand presents the corresponding tables at constant prices.

A special feature of this report is the presentation of constant price tables for the years 1961 to 1971 in 1961 prices and for the years 1961 to 1974 in 1971 prices. The 1961-based tables are consistent with other parts of the System of National Accounts in measuring economic growth and the 1971-based tables permit analysis of the 14-year period without the encumbrance of adjusting entries.

Work is underway on the compilation of current and constant price annual Input-Output Tables for the years 1975 and 1976. This work is expected to be completed by the end of 1979. From that point onwards, the annual Input-Output Tables will be completed with a lag of about three years from the reference year.

This report was prepared under the direction of Kishori Lal, Director of the Input-Output Division, with major contributions by A.B. McCormick and his staff.

PETER G. KIRKHAM,

Chief Statistician of Canada.

THE SYSTEM OF NATIONAL ACCOUNTS

In Canada, the National Accounts have been developed since the close of the Second World War in a series of publications relating to their constituent parts. These have now reached a stage of evolution where they can be termed a "System of National Accounts". For purposes of identification, all publications (containing tables of statistics, descriptions of conceptual frameworks and descriptions of sources and methods) which make up this System will now carry the term "System of National Accounts" as a general title.

The System of National Accounts in Canada consists of several parts. The annual and quarterly Income and Expenditure Accounts (included with Catalogue Nos. carrying the prefix 13) were historically speaking, the first set of statistics to be referred to with the title "National Accounts" (National Accounts, Income and Expenditure). The Balance of International Payments data (Catalogue Nos. with prefix 67) in their more summary form, are also part of the System of National Accounts and they, in fact, pre-date the Income and Expenditure Accounts.

Greatly expanded structural detail on industries and on goods and services is portrayed in the Input-Output Tables of the System (Catalogue Nos. with prefix 15). The indexes of Real Domestic Product by Industry (included with Catalogue Nos. carrying the prefix 61) provide "constant dollar" measures of the contribution of each industry to Gross Domestic Product at factor cost. Inputs and outputs are related in Productivity Studies (Catalogue Nos. with prefix 14).

Both the Input-Output Tables and Indexes of Real Domestic Product by Industry use the establishment as the primary unit of industrial production. Measures of financial transactions are provided by the Financial Flow Accounts (Catalogue Nos. with prefix 13). Types of lenders and financial instruments are the primary detail in these statistics, and the legal entity is the main unit of classification of transactors. Also, provision is made in the System for incorporation of balance sheet (wealth) estimates when such data are sufficiently developed.

The System of National Accounts provides an overall conceptually integrated framework in which the various parts can be considered as interrelated sub-systems. At present, direct comparisons amongst those parts which use the establishment as the basic unit and those which use the legal entity can be carried out only at highly aggregated levels of data. However, Statistics Canada is continuing research on enterprise-company-establishment relationships; it may eventually be feasible to reclassify the data which are on one basis (say the establishment basis) to correspond to the units employed on another (the company or the enterprise basis).

In its broad outline, the Canadian System of National Accounts bears a close relationship to the international standard as described in the United Nations publication, A System of National Accounts (Studies in Methods, Series F, No. 2, Rev. 3, Statistical Office, Department of Economic and Social Affairs, United Nations, New York, 1968).

Introduction

This report presents annual Input-Output Tables in constant prices for Canada, and covers the years 1961 to 1974. Corresponding current price estimates were published recently in the publication The Input-Output Structure of the Canadian Economy, 1961 - 74 (Catalogue 15-508E). Current price estimates for the years 1975 and 1976 are currently under preparation and are scheduled for completion by the end of 1979, with tables for the post-1976 period to follow. The corresponding constant price tables will ensue the completion of the current price tables.

Input-Output Tables in constant 1961 prices for the period 1961 to 1971 were published in The Input-Output Structure of the Canadian Economy in Constant 1961 Prices, 1961 - 71 (Catalogue 15-507E). This present report supersedes that publication.

A special feature of this present report is the presentation of two series of tables for the years 1961 to 1971, one series calculated in constant 1961 prices and one series calculated in constant 1971 prices. The conventional practice in the Canadian System of National Accounts when presenting a longer time series in constant prices is to link successive time segments, each segment deflated with price indexes based on one (or more) year(s) in the time segment, and to express the linked series in terms of one reference year which is normally the weight base of the most recent time segment.¹ This procedure gives rise to numerous adjusting entries, which are explicit when the constant price series is expressed in dollar terms,² or implicit when the constant price series is expressed in index number form.³ Such adjusting entries can be accommodated when tables are given in vector form, but not in matrix form as are the Input-Output Tables. The immediate solution is to express the whole time series in terms of the relative prices of a single base year. Thus one set of Tables (67 to 150) in this report present the constant price Input-Output Tables for the years 1961 to 1974 in constant 1971 prices. The measured performance of economic aggregates at constant prices is not independent of the selection of the base year and other constant price series in the Canadian System of National Accounts incorporate 1961 price weights for the period 1961 to 1971. Thus another set of Tables (1 to 66) in this report present the constant price Input-Output Tables for the years 1961 to 1971 in constant 1961 prices. Some aspects of the selection of base years are discussed more fully in Chapter 3, Interpretation of Results.

The deflation process has been carried out for each year for 191 industries, 595 commodities and three primary inputs (commodity indirect taxes, other indirect taxes and subsidies) and 136 categories of final demand. Gross Domestic Product at factor cost was calculated residually through the use of double deflation. The reader is referred to the chapter on Deflation for further detail.

Three tables have been prepared and presented for each year: (1) Make Matrix (2) Use Matrix, and (3) Final Demand Matrix. At the most detailed level, described as the L level of aggregation, many of the entries in the various matrices are confidential under provisions of the Statistics Act. Though all of the tables are prepared at the L level of aggregation, it is only at the aggregation levels S and M that tables are published. The dimensions of these aggregations are given below:

Description of aggregation	Number of industries	Number of final demand categories	Number of commodities and primary inputs
S	16	14	49
M	43	14	100
L	191	136	602

Tables at aggregations S and M are presented in this volume for each year. Some cells of the Make Matrix at aggregation M are confidential. These cells have been suppressed though industry totals and commodity totals have been preserved.

As noted, the Make Matrix (matrix of the values of commodity outputs), Use Matrix (matrix of the values of intermediate commodity inputs as well as primary inputs) and Final Demand Matrix are presented for each year. Chapter 1 gives the conceptual framework of the Canadian Input-Output Tables and contains a description of these matrices and their inter-connections. Chapter 2 describes the deflation process, double deflation and reviews the constant price results. The reader is referred to the chapters on Classification Systems and Special Definitions in the current price publication of the Input-Output Tables (Catalogue 15-508E). For the convenience of the reader, the Appendix on Aggregation Parameters is repeated (from Catalogue 15-508E) in this publication.

The reader should keep in mind one reservation when relating the commodities in the Use Matrix with the commodities listed in the Appendix on Aggregation Parameters for aggregations S and M. The last three items — item 47 labour income; item 48 net income unincorporated business and item 49 other operating surplus — in aggregation S have been put together as GDP at factor cost in the S aggregation Use Matrices. Similarly, the last four items — item 97 wages and salaries; item 98 supplementary labour income; item 99 net income unincorporated business and item 100 other operating surplus — in aggregation M have been combined as GDP at factor cost in the M aggregation Use Matrices.

THE ACCOUNTING FRAMEWORK

Input-Output Tables present the most detailed accounting of the Canadian economy. Intelligent use of these tables depends upon an understanding of their structure and a knowledge of the accounting conventions used. These were described fully in our publication covering current price Input-Output Tables.¹ It also presented a schematic accounting framework of the Canadian Input-Output Tables. That accounting framework is repeated here and is given in Figure I.

A minor reservation must be kept in mind when visualizing the accounting framework of the Canadian Input-Output Tables in constant prices. In current prices, the following primary inputs can be presented: commodity indirect taxes; other indirect taxes; less subsidies; wages and salaries; supplementary labour income; net income of unincorporated business; and other operating surplus. In constant prices, however, Gross Domestic Product at factor cost (for all industries) must be calculated as a residual, that is the difference between the gross output of industries and the total non-factor inputs. This residual includes the constant price equivalent of the sum of wages and salaries, supplementary labour income, net income of unincorporated business and other operating surplus. The necessity for this approach will be explained in the next chapter on Deflation.

One further distinction between the current price tables and the constant price tables may be noted. The framework can be visualized in either of two valuation systems, purchasers' prices and producers' prices. Operationally, in current price tables purchasers' values are initially calculated; the appropriate margins are then allocated and the purchasers' values converted to producers' values. For the constant price tables, the deflation process starts with the current price tables at producers' prices. The producers' price concept implies a uniform basis of valuation through a commodity vector, and thus the same price index (for a given year) is applied to every cell for a particular commodity. (The commodity dimensions of the tables for purposes of deflation is not necessarily identical to that of the current price tables. See the discussion of imports in the chapter on Deflation.) Alternatively, at purchasers' prices, each transaction represents a potentially unique amalgam of producers' values and transport, trade and tax margins, and, potentially the number of deflators required can equal the number of cells in the Input-Output Tables. Apart from the computation complexity, such a manifold array of price information does not exist. On the other hand, the commodity price information collected for the compilation of Industry Selling Price Indexes can be used to construct deflators for values at producers' prices.

All the matrices were explained fully in the current price publication (Catalogue 15-508E) and only certain highlights will be emphasized in this chapter.

The Input-Output Tables for Canada contain two sets of interrelated accounts, the Commodity Accounts and the Industry Accounts. The former details the supply and disposition of individual commodities (goods and non-factor services). The latter details the commodity composition of the output of industries and the complete costs of production (including earnings of the primary factors of production) of industries. These accounts are described below.

Commodity Accounts

As noted, the Commodity Accounts display the supply and disposition of each commodity. Matrix V shows the production of each commodity produced by each industry valued at producers' prices. The disposition of commodities by the various classes of transactors are shown in matrices U and F. Matrix U contains the use, on current account, by each industry of each commodity for the purpose of using it as an intermediate input in the production of other commodities.

Matrix F contains the demand for each commodity by final demand category — personal expenditure, fixed capital formation, additions to (the value of physical change in) inventories, gross government expenditure on

V: is a matrix of the values of outputs
 U: is a matrix of the values of intermediate inputs
 F: is a matrix of the values of commodity inputs of final demand categories
 YI: is a matrix of the values of primary inputs of industries
 YF: is a matrix of the values of primary inputs of final demand categories
 q: is a vector of the values of total commodity outputs
 g: is a vector of the values of total industry outputs
 e: is a vector of the values of total inputs (commodities plus primary) of final demand categories
 n: is a vector of the values of total primary inputs (industries plus final demand categories)

GLOSSARY

Matrices

V: is a matrix of the values of commodity outputs. In it, each row shows the distribution by commodity of the output of an industry; each column shows the distribution by industry of the output of a commodity. The data relate to domestic output only. The gross output of an industry is the aggregate value of goods and services produced and work done by the industry. It is equal to the value of industry's sales plus any increase (less any decrease) in the value of physical change in stocks of finished products and work in progress.

U: is a matrix of the values of intermediate commodity inputs. In it, each row shows the distribution by industry of the input of a commodity, each column shows the distribution by commodity of the input of an industry.

F: is a matrix of the values of commodity inputs of final demand categories: personal expenditure on consumer goods and services; fixed capital formation, business and government; value of physical change in inventories, withdrawals and additions; gross government current expenditure on goods and services; exports; imports; and government revenue from the sales of goods and services.

YI: is a matrix of the values of primary inputs of industries. Primary inputs are those inputs which are not current outputs of other industries. These are indirect taxes, subsidies, wages and salaries, supplementary labour income, net income of unincorporated business and other operating surplus. (In this report, the term "other operating surplus" and "surplus" have been used interchangeably.)

YF: is a matrix of the values of the primary inputs associated with final demand categories. These consist of indirect taxes, labour income, and depreciation which is part of surplus. The labour income includes wages and salaries and supplementary labour income paid by the government and personal sectors. The estimate of surplus (depreciation) relates to the government sector and non-profit institutions in the personal sector.

Industry. An industry is defined as a group of operating units (establishments) engaged in the same or similar kind(s) of economic activity, e.g., coal mines, clothing factories, department stores, laundries. In the Input-Output Tables only domestic industries which primarily produce goods and services for sale at a price which is normally intended to cover their cost of production are included; also included are entities, such as owner-occupants of housing and subsistence farming, which produce goods and services similar to and use processes and resources similar to typical industries even though they do not produce for market. Other entities, although listed in the Standard Industrial Classification, are not included as industries in the Input-Output Tables as they do not meet the above criteria; examples are most government departments, public hospitals, schools (except private) and universities.

Commodity. A commodity is defined as a good or service normally intended for sale on the market at a price designed to cover the cost of production.

Establishment. An establishment is defined as the smallest unit that is a separate operating entity capable of reporting all elements of basic industrial statistics – the main elements of input and output. It is typically a factory, mine, store, farm, airline, hotel or similar unit and in most cases it is a separate company.

Purchasers' prices. The cost of goods and services in the market to the point of delivery to the purchaser. The purchasers' price can vary with circumstances, e.g., where the purchaser picks up the commodity at the producer's point of shipment rather than having it hauled by a common or contract carrier at the expense of the producer.

Producers' prices. The selling price at the boundary of the producing establishment excluding sales and excise taxes levied after the final stage of processing; equals purchasers' prices less transport, trade and commodity indirect tax margins where applicable.

goods and services and exports. The three other columns in matrix F are imports, withdrawals from (the value of physical change in) inventories and government revenue from the sales of goods and services. These three categories supplement the supply of goods and services produced by Canadian industries. It should be noted however that small amounts of goods and services are produced within the government sector and the production costs of these goods and services are already included in gross government expenditure. Matrices U and F include the use of commodities originating either as imports, as withdrawals from inventories, or as government-produced goods and services. Three adjustments are thus required – imports because they are extraneous to the production of Canadian industries, withdrawals from inventories because these were produced in an earlier period, and government revenues from sales of goods and services because the costs have already been fully accounted for in government gross expenditure – to effect equality with the output of domestic industries.

The Industry Accounts

The total output of each industry, classified by commodity, is shown in the industry's row of matrix V. The inputs of each industry are shown in the industry's column which covers both matrix U for intermediate inputs and matrix YI for primary inputs. Matrices U and V were discussed above under the Commodity Accounts. The primary inputs in matrix YI consist of net indirect taxes (commodity indirect taxes, plus other indirect taxes, less subsidies) and GDP at factor cost (wages and salaries, supplementary labour income, net income of unincorporated business and surplus).

For each and all industries total output equals total input, intermediate and primary.

Primary Inputs and Final Demand

There is one matrix not yet described, YF. This contains primary inputs purchased directly by final demand categories. Labour income in matrix YF represents the wages and salaries, and supplementary labour income paid to persons employed in the personal and government sectors. This includes the employees of non-profit institutions, such as universities and labour unions, and the income of domestic servants and baby sitters in the personal sector, and all public servants in the government sector. Surplus in matrix YF reflects the depreciation on assets owned in the government sector and by non-profit institutions classified to the personal sector. Assets which are charged to fixed capital formation in these sectors are depreciated, such as buildings, roads, equipment, etc. All residential housing, even when owner-occupied, is classified to business, and thus depreciation on housing is part of the surplus of the appropriate industry in matrix YI, not YF.

With the description of all the matrices, certain identities become apparent.

The total outputs of industries equal the total intermediate inputs of industries plus their total primary inputs.

The total outputs of commodities of industries equal the total intermediate inputs plus the total commodity inputs into the final demand categories.

Intermediate inputs being common, primary inputs of industries equal commodity inputs of final demand categories.

Adding primary inputs of final demand categories to both sides, we get:

- (a) primary inputs of industries and of final demand categories equal to,
- (b) commodity inputs of final demand categories plus primary inputs of final demand categories. (a) is called Gross Domestic Product at market prices and (b) is called Expenditure on Gross Domestic Product at market prices.

The above identity is true for both current price and constant price tables.

Gross Domestic Product (GDP) at factor cost (wages and salaries, supplementary labour income, net income of unincorporated business and other operating surplus) equals GDP at market prices less net indirect taxes (commodity indirect taxes plus other indirect taxes less subsidies).

Chapter 2

DEFLATION

Nature of Deflation

A time series of Input-Output Tables expressed in current prices, that is the prices which obtain in the actual years being measured, reflect two elements of change — changes in the quantities of commodities produced and changes in the prices attached to those commodities. While such tables serve a large number of uses there is an additional need for a set of accounts in which the effect of changing prices on the measured flow of economic activity is removed, resulting in a measure of the quantity of commodities produced, often referred to as the real value of production. This process of removing price change from the nominal values of transactions is referred to as deflation.

Certain characteristics of the deflation process should be noted at the outset. Deflation is essentially the construction of a model, or logical abstraction of actual transactions, and as such it has certain interesting limitations. The seemingly ideal approach to deflation would be direct measures of quantity. However such measures are not additive. There is no meaningful way to combine tons of steel and dozens of oranges, for example. The only workable solution to this dilemma is to fix values for these quantities in terms of their prices at some point in time, the base year. Thus the dollar value of a quantity of oranges is additive to the dollar value of a quantity of steel. If all quantities are expressed in terms of their base-year prices, the constant price values for each commodity will be proportional to its quantities in different years, yet commodities of diverse characteristics will remain additive, and the construction of a set of accounts summarizing manifold transactions is possible.

The conventions just described leave one problem unsolved. It is easily observed that relative price changes for different commodities are not identical, and thus the relationship of the prices of diverse commodities will be different at different points in time. The ratio of the price of a barrel of oil to the price of a ton of coal is quite different in the later 1970's than it was in the previous decade. If quantities of oil and coal were to be combined, the importance of oil, or its "weight", if the quantities are valued in the prices of (say) 1976, will be much greater than if valued in 1961 prices. Thus it is important to note that trends in constant price series which are summations of two or more commodities can be strongly influenced by the choice of the base year.

There is another dimension to obtaining measures of quantity by deflation, the problem of quality change. A bushel of wheat with a high protein content is not identical to one with less protein, and a large eight-cylinder automobile has a different value to most people than a small four-cylinder automobile. In the construction of price indexes for deflation adjustments are made, although often imperfect, to allow for changes in quality. The conventional term for quantity data which incorporates an adjustment for quality change is "quantum".

With these notions of the nature and limitations of deflation some reasons for constructing constant price, or quantum, series can be suggested.

As has been noted, deflation removes the effect of price changes on time series measuring economic activity. Thus it becomes possible to measure the real growth in the output of a commodity, or an industry, and combinations thereof as well as for the whole economy.

The descriptions to this point have been covered in terms of general reference to macro-economic measures. There are of course a number of features particular to constant price Input-Output Tables.

Primarily, constant price Input-Output Tables present a quantum, or real, view of the structure of the economy — quantum measures of commodity output, commodity input and primary input. However as the tables are constructed using a base-weighted, or Laspeyres index number formula, they have limitations for a study of changes in production or changes in the production function in response to a shift in relative prices. For example, if there is a shift among commodity inputs in response to relative price changes, or a shift between commodity inputs and primary inputs for the same reason, the base-weighted tables will continue to show quanta in the relative prices of the base year.

Constant price Input-Output Tables impart more flexibility to some forms of structural analysis. A particular case in point is productivity analysis which has been restricted to relating labour input to Real Domestic Product. With constant price Input-Output Tables it becomes possible to relate a number of unit input requirements to gross output, and thus considerable depth can be added to productivity analysis.

The previous chapter on the accounting framework illustrated how a set of Input-Output Tables encompasses the conventional measures of economic production – Gross Domestic Product, Expenditure on Gross Domestic Product. As the current price Input-Output Tables produce these accounts on a consistent basis so are the constant price Input-Output Tables a necessary vehicle for reconciling Real Domestic Product with constant price Expenditure on Gross Domestic Product.

One of the statistical roles for Input-Output Tables is that of statistical integration and the construction of constant price Input-Output Tables can serve to uncover anomalies among different price indexes. The Input-Output Tables are a balanced system valued at producers' prices. Thus the same price attaches to a commodity as output in the Make Matrix and as input in the Use and Final Demand Matrices. The addition of margins to producers' values renders them in purchasers' values and the synthetic price index so constructed can be compared with observed price indexes such as the Consumer Price Index. In cases of disagreement between the observed and synthetic price indexes an investigation will usually reveal the probable cause and judgements can be made as to what adjustments are necessary.

Double Deflation

"Double Deflation" is a technique whereby the constant price value added, or Gross Domestic Product of (say) an industry is inferred as the difference between the quantum of gross output and the quantum of commodity input of that industry, rather than being measured directly. If the indirect taxes and subsidies pertaining to the industry are estimated and also netted out, the residual yields a measure of Gross Domestic Product at factor cost; leaving net indirect taxes in the residual produces a measure of Gross Domestic Product at market prices for that industry.

Double deflation is necessary because it is difficult to even visualize how to factor some of the primary inputs into quantum and price. It is possible to conceive of price and quantum measures for labour income and for capital consumption allowances. In fact, for factor income originating in final demand categories, which consist of just labour income and capital consumption allowances, these flows are deflated. But the construction of price indexes for net income of unincorporated business and for the remaining parts of operating surplus, principally for profits, is impossible. As reliable price indexes for most of labour income do not in fact exist, the total of constant price Gross Domestic Product for industries is calculated by the double deflation approach.

Input-Output Tables lend themselves readily to double deflation as the full detail of commodity output and commodity input is specified for each industry. As the tables are at producers' prices, a uniform basis of valuation applies to a commodity throughout the tables, and thus a given commodity is deflated uniformly with the same price index.

The equality noted in Chapter 1, where the primary inputs of industries equal the commodity inputs of final demand categories, holds of course for the constant price Input-Output Tables. The primary inputs in the final demand categories are deflated, and thus one can derive both Gross Domestic Product at constant prices and Expenditure on Gross Domestic Product at constant prices. The interpretation of the tables is explained in Chapter 3, Interpretation of Results.

Text Tables I and II give two examples of the deflation of selected industries. It must be emphasized that the orientation of Input-Output Tables is to commodities. Industries are the locus of the production and intermediate use of commodities. The prices for the total output of an industry (which produces more than one commodity) for the commodity input of an industry, and of the primary inputs of an industry are implicit prices, and thus not precisely a measure of price change for those totals.

The two industries illustrated are Owner-occupied Dwellings and Agriculture. The details for these two industries have been taken from the M aggregation. In the first instance, the industry produces only one commodity; in the second, and more typical case, the industry produces several commodities.

An inspection of both tables reveals certain features of double deflation.

The first observation is that, as would be expected, price indexes do not all change by the same amount. In Text Table I the price index for imputed rent on owner-occupied dwellings increased by 19% while the price index of commodity inputs, indirect taxes and subsidies increased 26%. As output prices increased less than input prices, the price of value added, which is a residual, rose less, by 9%. The quantum increases in the three sub-totals – commodity inputs plus net indirect taxes, Real GDP at factor cost, and Total Output (Total Input) – vary from each other. Neither total output, which increased 10.4%, nor the non-factor inputs, which increased 12.5%, can be used as a proxy measure for constant price Gross Domestic Product, which increased 8.9%.

In Text Table II referring to Agriculture, an industry with actual rather than imputed output, considerable variation in price change is observed, with the price index for grains increasing almost twice as much as the price index for other commodities. Also observed in Text Table II is the behaviour of subsidies. While there is a large increase in subsidies in current prices, subsidies in constant prices reflect subsidy rates in the base year. Thus the change in constant price subsidies is in line with the change in total output of the industry.

It has already been noted that deflation is carried out with the producers' price tables. This is necessary because only the producers' price tables yield the uniform valuation that permits a consistent deflation through commodity vectors.

The sources of the deflators will be described below in general terms for most of the commodities, with particular descriptions of the commodities which are peculiar to Input-Output Tables.

In principle, the quantum aggregates are constructed according to the Laspeyres or base-weighted formula. That is for a given year the constant price entries are the quanta for that year, valued at the prices of the base year.¹ The price indexes are of the Paasche type, or currently-weighted indexes. This accords with the well-known identity where

Index number formulae are described in great detail in a number of reference texts. However, the application of these formulae to most macro-economic accounts usually is rigorous only to the limits of the classification system. In the present case the price indexes used to deflate combinations of the 595 commodities specified in the Input-Output Tables are currently weighted. These 595 commodities can in almost every case be further specified, and the possibilities are, in theory, almost limitless. The construction of each of the 595 price indexes involves weighting together price relatives for a much larger number of commodity elements, and in such construction of price indexes the index formula is almost invariably of the base-weighted type. Thus while the index number formula suggests that the quantum measures are base-weighted, the reality is something of a mixture.

The price indexes used come from a number of sources. The largest number were constructed from price information collected for the construction of the Industry Selling Price Indexes (ISPI's) and were compiled with the cooperation of Prices Division. In this project the ISPI price data were classified and weighted to accord with the commodity classification of the Input-Output Tables. (Industry Selling Price Indexes are price indexes of representative commodities sold by the specified industries.) Imports were deflated in a special manner, described below. To supplement these sources much reliance was placed on price indexes developed in the Industry Product Division and the Gross National Product Division. Substantial statistical assistance and advice were obtained from the Rail and Water Committees of the Canadian Transport Commission and from the National Harbours Board of Transport Canada in the compilation of price indexes for transportation-related commodities. Some price indexes were developed in the Input-Output Division, in part in response to gaps and deficiencies in existing prices, and in part in response to the particular needs of the Input-Output Tables.

The specification of commodities for current price Input-Output Tables does not always meet the needs of commodity specification for purposes of deflation. If there is reason to suspect that subsets of an input-output commodity class may display different price movements, then these subsets should be identified and deflated separately. Such procedures should be limited by the significance of the problem as well as the availability of the necessary value and price information. One step in this direction introduced in the present publication is the deflation of merchandise imports with import prices, beginning in 1971. Statistical problems make it difficult to carry the procedure back to 1961. Price indexes of imports are developed in the External Trade Division for the compilation of "Price and Volume Indexes of Imports"² and these price indexes were compiled and weighted to accord with the input-output commodity classification. The volume indexes of merchandise imports are published by the External Trade Division for broad commodity groupings and price indexes were not available for all the commodity classes in the Input-Output Tables. About three quarters of the value of merchandise imports in the Input-Output Tables were deflated with these price indexes; in the remaining cases domestic deflators were used. It has been described³ that in the Input-Output Tables merchandise imports are adjusted for transport and tax margins. The price indexes from External Trade Division are calculated on a merchandise trade basis; in the Input-Output Tables the deflators are used in a like manner, with constant price margins where applicable added to merchandise imports deflated on a merchandise trade valuation.

In summary, the following situation obtains in the present Input-Output Tables from 1971: on the supply side the commodity output of domestic industries is deflated with domestic price indexes and imports are deflated with import prices; on the use side exports are deflated with domestic prices (exports coming from domestic sources of supply) and other use categories deflated with a weighted index of domestic and import prices, the weights being the shares. It is probable that, for a particular commodity, the proportion as between imports and domestic sources of the use of the commodity as an intermediate input by industries or in final demand categories is not the same in every case, but it is not possible to measure such market shares in individual cases.

² Summary of External Trade (Catalogue 65-001) Monthly, Table 5.

³ Catalogue 15-508E, op. cit., p. 29.

The price indexes for the following commodities and primary inputs were made for the particular needs of the Input-Output Tables:

1. Dummy commodities.
2. Trade (retail and wholesale) margins.
3. Indirect taxes and subsidies.

They are described in turn:

1. Dummy Commodities

Dummy commodities and dummy industries are a routing technique used in Input-Output Tables where the precise commodity detail for a range of related commodities cannot be determined when they are purchased by a particular industry. A dummy industry related to the dummy commodity is shown as purchasing the related assortment of commodities, and then selling the package to the purchasing industry. A list of the dummy industries makes the nature of this technique obvious:

Operating supplies
Office supplies
Cafeteria requirements
Transportation margins
Laboratory supplies
Travel and entertainment
Advertising and promotion
Machinery repair services.

Each purchaser of a dummy commodity is assumed to purchase the relevant group of commodities in the same proportion that the dummy industry "producing" that dummy commodity purchases the commodities as inputs. There are no factor inputs to dummy industries.

As there are no factor inputs into dummy industries the quantum of output of the dummy industry is equal to the sum of the commodity and tax inputs into the industry, and the price index of the dummy commodity is the implicit price of all the inputs into the corresponding dummy industry.

2. Trade (Retail and Wholesale) Margins

Trade margins are principally produced by wholesale trade and retail trade industries although some trade margins are produced by other industries, notably industries trading in goods purchased for resale in addition to their principal activity. Trade margins are one of the elements in the difference between purchasers' values and producers' values, and they can be measured as the difference between the selling value of a commodity sold by a trader and the cost to him of that commodity. Thus the ideal solution in calculating constant price trade margins would be to obtain the difference between the constant price sales of commodities and the constant price cost of those commodities to the trader. In reality the necessary array of price indexes, which would include buying and selling price indexes for both wholesale and retail trade, by commodity, does not exist. It is also recognized that the quantities and qualities of services embedded in trade margins can vary over time and between commodities. Warranty provisions can change; the customer may have to perform more of the service himself (for example, the spread of self-service outlets); the responsibility for display set-ups and advertising can shift between buyer and seller.

The convention adopted to measure constant price trade margins is as follows. Changes in the margin rates from current price tables are taken as measures of the relative change of the quantum of service embodied in a trade margin. The margin rate is, simply, the ratio of the value of the margin to the producers' price of the commodity to which the margin applied, for each purchaser. The constant price margin is the current year margin rate, defined above, applied to the constant price producers' value of the commodity. Tax and transport margins, in addition to trade margins, also arise between producers' and purchasers' prices, and form part of the value on which the trader applies his gross mark-up. Although these margins can occur at any point in the chain between the producer and final consumer of a commodity the actual point of incidence is not known. The practice adopted is to calculate the wholesale margin rate on producers' prices and the retail margin rate on producers' prices plus wholesale margins plus transport margins. Indirect taxes are not included in the calculation of the margin rate, in part because some taxes fall after the retail level – provincial sales taxes. The margin rates as described above for wholesale and retail trade were applied to constant price values constructed in a corresponding manner. It may be observed that the above procedures assume that the selling price for a commodity passing through trade channels is proportional to the buying price, adjusted only for the estimated quantity of service provided by the trade industry.

3. Indirect Taxes and Subsidies

Indirect taxes are an element of cost in the production process which are not dictated by immediate technological needs. Taxes are the main source of funds for financing the social capital and social overhead necessary for the functioning of the economy, but this cannot be earmarked to particular industries or establishments. Subsidies are the obverse of taxes in that they are payments to rather than charges to producing industries by government.

As taxes are a cost for which no specific and identifiable service is rendered, it is not reasonable to view the deflation of taxes in a manner symmetrical with the deflation of commodities. The value of taxes cannot be factored into a measure of quantum and price. However in market transactions commodity indirect taxes usually do form an identifiable element in the transaction price. As the tax element is identifiable an implicit transaction price excluding taxes can be determined. This process can be repeated for successive transactions over time and the process can be extended to determining the constant price values of transactions including and excluding indirect taxes. The difference between the constant price inclusive of and exclusive of taxes is necessarily constant price taxes. It follows that constant price taxes can be calculated as the base year tax rate applied to the constant price value ex tax of the commodity being taxed in other years.

It should be noted that changes in tax rates for succeeding years have no effect on the calculation of constant price taxes. The deflation process establishes the quantum in succeeding years in terms of base year prices, and the prices of the base year are determined by the tax rate in the base year.

The Input-Output Tables show commodity indirect taxes and other indirect taxes. Almost all the commodity indirect taxes are allocated to specific commodities, and are paid by the transactor purchasing the commodity, either as intermediate input or in a final demand category. These constant price indirect taxes are calculated in each cell in the Use or Final Demand Matrices where an indirect commodity tax occurs, and the taxes are summed over the appropriate Use or Final Demand vectors.

Retail sales taxes are one element of commodity indirect taxes that in the current price Input-Output Tables are not allocated to individual commodities, but to detailed final demand categories and to construction and dummy industries. The procedure followed here is analogous to the one described above except that the calculation is made at the level of detail at which the retail taxes are allocated.

Input-Output Tables identify other indirect taxes, of which property taxes are the dominant component. These taxes cannot be allocated to specific commodities, and are attributed to the paying industry. As property taxes are the major component, the total of other indirect taxes are deflated with a price index of property taxes.

The deflation of subsidies does present difficulties, but happily they are a relatively small element in the operating account of the industries where they occur. Where subsidies are a payment to cover an operating loss they are more akin to negative direct taxes than to negative indirect taxes, and as such it is difficult to determine the mechanism by which they become embodied in the prices of the commodities being produced. However, the convention adopted for the deflation of subsidies is to calculate subsidies as a ratio to the industry's gross output in the base year, and to calculate constant price subsidies in succeeding years as the product of this base year rate and constant price gross output of the industry.

Chapter 3

INTERPRETATION OF RESULTS

Selection of Base Year

Two sets of constant price Input-Output Tables are presented in this report. One set, Tables 1 to 66, is calculated on 1961 prices and cover the years 1961 to 1971; the other set, Tables 67 to 150, is calculated on 1971 prices and covers the years 1961 to 1974. While this dual approach is a response to the accounting requirements of Input-Output Tables, it also affords an opportunity to display some aspects of deflation and the related phenomenon of the measurement of economic growth that might otherwise remain more obscure.

It is observable that all prices do not change by the same relative amount over time. When a series of values for a single homogeneous commodity is adjusted for price change, the rate of change in the quantum of that commodity will be independent of what period is selected as the base. However, when the quanta of two or more commodities are summed, the same unique answer is no longer necessarily possible. If a basket of goods includes motor gasoline priced at $0.40 per gallon in one period and $1.00 per gallon in the second period, and if the prices of other commodities have increased by smaller relative amounts between the same two periods, the quanta of the total basket will be weighted more heavily by gasoline if the second period is chosen as the base period, and the change in the total basket will be influenced more heavily by changes in the quantum of gasoline. It is for this reason that the measured rate of growth is not independent of the base year selected.

In the Canadian System of National Accounts, 1961 has been selected as the base year for the period 1961 to 1971, and 1971 for the years 1971 and following. Other base years were chosen for earlier periods. The practice is to carry out the deflation process for each time period segment using the prices of the base year of that time period segment, and then to link the time period segments, expressing them nominally in the prices of a single reference year. This process results in measured growth for the individual time series segments reflecting the selection of the base years deemed appropriate, while the single reference year facilitates comparison over time.¹ Difficulty arises in that, while such linked indexes facilitate temporal analysis, they are not additive, except with adjusting entries, and thus do not permit analysis of the structure or composition of the aggregate. The classification of the adjusting entries is indeterminate. This presents obvious difficulties for Input-Output Tables which are designed primarily to depict the structural relationships in economic production. The industry accounts and the commodity accounts must balance, and there is no provision for adjusting entries in these balances.

We have seen that there is no unique answer in the construction of constant price time series, with results dependent upon the selection of the base year, and that two sets of tables are presented in this report. The tables in 1961 prices, for the years 1961 to 1971, display the structure of and growth in the economy valued in the prices of 1961; these tables are constructed with the same weight bases as other corresponding measures in the Canadian System of National Accounts. The tables in 1971 prices, for the years 1961 to 1974, display the structure of and growth in the economy valued in the prices of 1971; here individual commodity vectors are valued on a uniform basis over the whole period, but the structure and growth displayed is different from that in the tables valued in 1961 prices. It is possible, for any aggregation, to link the series in 1971 and obtain a series expressed in a single reference year but containing the price weight bases of the two periods, but the calculation is dependent upon the level of aggregation chosen. Thus there are a large number of possibilities, and no a priori selection is made in this report.

Text Table III presents a comparison of GDP at Market Prices valued in 1961 constant prices and in 1971 constant prices, for the years 1961 to 1971. In seven out of the 10 cases the difference in the year-to-year per cent change is less than 0.5% and for the 11-year period the average annual rate of growth is 3.0% in 1961 prices and 2.9% in 1971 prices. An analysis of the source of the difference between the 1961-based measures and the 1971-based measures would be very elaborate, taking into account the differences in the relative price changes for all the commodities in the system. However some insight can be gained by looking at the behaviour of major components of Gross Domestic Product in a pair of years. Text Table III shows that between 1966 and 1967 the 1961-based measure increased by 3.1% and the 1971-based measure increased by 3.5%. Text Table IV presents the major components of Gross Domestic Product at market prices and it is evident that the relative change in each of the components is almost identical as between the 1961-based data and the 1971-based data. What has changed is the share of the component to total GDP: the share of GDP at factor cost, Industries to total GDP at market prices is 75.7% in 1961 prices and 71.0% in 1971 prices; the share of GDP, Final Demand Categories goes from 12.0% to 15.8% when the same bases are compared; the share of net indirect taxes also changes. The reason for the changes in these relative shares can be deduced from looking at the changes in the implicit prices of the components. On either the 1961 base or the 1971 base the change in the implicit price from 1961 to 1967 of GDP at factor cost, Final Demand Categories is more than twice the change in the implicit price of GDP at factor cost, Industries. This means that the value (value being defined as quantum times price) is relatively greater on the 1971 base than on the 1961 base. Indirect taxes also contribute to the shift. In the year selected, the increase in GDP, Final Demand Categories, is much greater than the increase in GDP, Industries, 9.4% (or 9.5% on the 1971 base) compared to 1.9%. Thus the component with the larger increase also has a larger weight in the 1971-based series, and with complementary changes taking place in the Net Indirect Taxes component, total GDP shows a larger increase in 1971 prices than in 1961 prices for the year 1967.

Explanation of Tabular Presentation

In addition to mapping the flows of commodities through the production system Input-Output Tables measure the value of economic production – Gross Domestic Product and Expenditure on Gross Domestic Product. In the accounting convention of the input-output system the tables are presented as matrices and some guidance in their interpretation may be useful.

The most obvious characteristic is that each table represents only one year. A matrix array does not permit the presentation of data as time series and a succession of tables must be consulted to determine the value of a selected class of transactions over several years. It is of course possible to reformulate the data so that a particular vector of transactions can be represented in a table showing a number of years (see Text Table V) but this would obscure the relationship of commodities among industries and final demand vectors. This relationship forms one of the more interesting aspects of Input-Output Tables.

The input-output account for any year encompasses three tables. The Make (Output) Matrix, the Use (Input) Matrix and the Final Demand Matrix. Thus more than one table may have to be consulted to derive some measures. As noted, both Gross Domestic Product and Expenditure on Gross Domestic Product form part of Input-Output Tables. Expenditure on Gross Domestic Product is an expressly articulated vector in the Final Demand Matrix. (Two sets of constant price Input-Output Tables are presented in this report, but the sample calculation below is drawn from the year 1974 in constant 1971 prices.) In the 1974 Final Demand Matrix, i.e., Table 147, the total of the last column is $112,983 million. This is the total Expenditure on GDP at market prices for 1974. (The same value for aggregation M can be read as the total of the last column of Table 150.) The totals of the other columns in Final Demand Matrix present Expenditure on GDP by Categories of Final Demand, with the rows representing the commodity composition of the expenditure.

Gross Domestic Product is calculated as the sum of the primary inputs and these occur in both the Use Matrix and the Final Demand Matrix. Again using 1974 as an example, data from Table 146, Use (Input) Matrix and Table 147, Final Demand Matrix have to be combined. From the last column, Total Industries, of Table 146, add the entries for row 46, net indirect taxes ($6,931 million) and the last row, Gross Domestic Product at factor cost ($80,335 million). From the last column, "Final Expenditure on GDP" of Table 147, combine the values for row 46, net indirect taxes $8,535 million; row 47, labour income ($15,363 million) and row 49, other operating surplus ($1,819 million). Labour income plus other operating surplus equals GDP at factor cost, $17,182 million, in final demand categories; that is the value listed in Column 2 of Text Table VI.

GDP at market prices equals the sum of:

1. GDP at factor cost, industries;
2. GDP at factor cost, final demand categories;
3. net indirect taxes, industries;
4. net indirect taxes, final demand categories.

Items 1 plus 2 equal total GDP at factor cost.

These tabulations for all years are summarized in Text Table V for the tables in constant 1961 prices and Text Table VI for the tables in constant 1971 prices.

A few summary ratios are presented in Text Table VII – the ratio of GDP to gross output, the ratio of commodity indirect taxes to domestic supply and the ratio of net indirect taxes to domestic supply. Domestic supply is defined as gross output plus imports minus exports.

The first ratio in Text Table VII (Column 8) shows that GDP as a per cent of gross output for the whole economy has remained between 44.9% and 46.1% with an average of 45.5% for the 14-year period.

It is interesting to observe commodity taxes as a per cent of domestic supply (Column 9 of Text Table VII). While this ratio remained relatively constant during the 1960's, ranging between 5.46% and 5.66%, it is showing some increase in the 1970's, rising to 6.20% in 1974. Constant price taxes are calculated with base year tax rates applicable to each commodity and category of use; thus any change in the ratio of commodity indirect taxes to domestic supply must reflect changes in the commodity composition of domestic supply or changes in the distribution of commodities among different use categories. Some evidence of a shift which would impact on the calculation of commodity indirect taxes is found in Consumer Expenditure. Within Consumer Expenditure, goods, particularly total goods less food and non-alcoholic beverages, are taxed more heavily than services. From 1970 to 1974 consumer purchases of goods less food and non-alcoholic beverages increased 45.8% while purchases of services increased 18.0%, both in constant prices. The spread is more than 28 percentage points in just four years. In contrast, between 1961 and 1970 consumer purchases of goods less food and non-alcoholic beverages increased 57.2% and purchases of services increased 47.3%. Here the spread is about 10 percentage points over a period of nine years. Shifts of this magnitude necessarily impact on the calculation of commodity indirect taxes.

Net indirect taxes constituted about 13% of GDP at market prices in 1971; the balance, 87% was contributed by GDP at factor cost. The ratio of GDP at factor cost to GDP at market prices, which can be calculated from Text Table VI was constant within a narrow range for the whole period until 1974, when indirect taxes increased to 13.7% of GDP at market prices. This noticeable change came from a unusual shift in the foreign trade balance in that year. In 1974 imports increased by 9.0% while exports declined slightly, by 0.6%. Exports are, with rare exceptions, not subject to tax while imports may be subject to import duties and all the taxes incurred by similar domestically produced commodities. Imports, of course, do not come from domestic production and are not reflected in the calculation of GDP. However all commodity taxes, including those imposed on imports, are included in GDP at market prices. With the increase in imports and the decrease in exports, there is an increase in the domestic supply of commodities (which generally are subject to commodity taxes) that is more than commensurate with the increase in domestic production. Commodity taxes are the main element in total indirect taxes, and with total indirect taxes increasing more than GDP at factor cost, the ratio of GDP at factor cost to GDP at market prices thus declined in 1974.

Appendix

AGGREGATION PARAMETERS FOR THE INPUT-OUTPUT TABLES

This Appendix includes the following:

1. Input-Output industry title set at the L aggregation (the most detailed) level with five-digit number and sequential number corresponding to each Input-Output industry.
2. Definition of Input-Output industry in terms of the 1960 and 1970 Standard Industrial Classification codes.
3. Two levels of aggregation — S and M — defined in terms of the L aggregation sequential numbers and the title sets for each level of aggregation of industries.

The levels of aggregation are hierarchical. The level "S" can be derived from the level "M" and the level "M" can be derived from the level "L". The hierarchical basis of aggregation is also true for commodities and categories of final demand.

4. Input-Output commodity title set at the L aggregation level with five-digit number and sequential number corresponding to each Input-Output commodity.
5. Two levels of aggregation — S and M — defined in terms of the L aggregation sequential numbers and the title set for each level of aggregation of commodities.
6. Input-Output category of final demand title set with five-digit number and L aggregation sequential number corresponding to each Input-Output category of final demand.
7. Two levels of aggregation — S and M — defined in terms of the L aggregation sequential numbers and the title set for each level of aggregation of categories of final demand. The S and M levels of aggregation bear close relationship with the information published in the National Income and Expenditure Accounts.
